

THE FOUNDATION FOR NORDIC CONSTRUCTION

As an important supplier of building materials, we are responsible for offering sustainable choices to the workman and meeting the Nordic standards for sustainable construction. Our products always meet the recognised standards so that we all take care of nature's resources.

Professional construction requires professional building materials. Each workman relies on building materials that are easy to handle to do the job quickly and effectively and there is no time for experimenting.

RAW is a range of building materials specifically selected to meet the specific requirements for Nordic construction in terms of durability, sustainability, architectural style and quality. RAW not only knows the Nordic market inside out. We also know that the local climate plays a decisive role in choosing the right materials. Therefore, all RAW building materials have been tested and approved by professionals so that the workman can rest assured that the quality and durability are top notch. This way, we continue a proud tradition for solid workmanship and provide the foundation for Nordic construction.
